Dear Family,

Wongaburra remain in mandatory lockdown but pleased to say that at the time of sending this update that all our residents are well and are able to move freely around the facility

In the event, that we do have an outbreak the link below explains what to expect during a COVID-19 outbreak – residents in aged care homes.

In Queensland, the Chief Health Officer has directed that any resident that is tested positive will be transferred to hospital. Our clinical team continues to have enhanced screening of our residents health and their own GPs consulted at once if a visit or review is required.

We did have some booked entertainment for our residents to enjoy but due to the lockdown we have to cancel. Our hardworking lifestyle and leisure team has put additional small group activities. Our Men Shed, which is becoming extra popular, remains open. Please take advantage of our other forms of connecting with your loved ones such as Zoom meeting, give us a call for booking.

Our staff are all diligently following infection control measures and strictly adhering the directives from the Qld Chief Health Officer. We will communicate as soon as we can once the preventive mandatory lockdown will end and visitation commences.

Take care and keep safe,

Wongaburra Society
